Dear client,

Roche Ltd., Consulting Engineers and the members of its organisation are pleased to announce that the companies formerly known as Groupe CADEC and Toptech have recently joined the ranks of the Groupe Roche team. The integration of these companies' operations into the Groupe Roche team, under the banner Cadec, a member of Roche, has the main objective of offering the most complete range of services in the manufacturing and industrial market segments.

Cadec, a member of Roche, covers all your optimisation needs for your manufacturing and industrial procedures and processes, from the definition of the project to the implementation, including the training necessary for the operations attached to it and the maintenance of your equipment.

Our experts can thus answer your optimisation needs in terms of Lean Six Sigma as well as automation by applying the principles of Lean Automation and security-maintenance practices. This combination of expertises is unique and allows us to accompany businesses throughout the optimisation of their administrative processes and manufacturing procedures. Our team has experience cumulating more than 7000 automation projects, 4000 Lean Six Sigma projects and 2000 security-maintenance projects.

In addition, each of our clients may now benefit from the expertise of more than 1000 persons dedicated to the success of their projects, by way of the Groupe Roche team, which includes experts from all spheres of industrial engineering and complementary fields of expertise.

Thus, from a sustainable development perspective, we hope to accompany you throughout the execution of your projects, from the first feasibility studies to the conception, implementation and all the way to perfect completion. We aspire to become one of your most important business partners in terms of innovative industrial solutions.

You can be assured of a service to the height of your expectations. Our people are customer driven and our goal is to collaborate closely with you to increase the efficiency of your operations, the productivity of your company, thus positively influencing its profitability.

Do not hesitate to call upon Cadec, a Roche member's team. The professionals with whom you have become accustomed to working with remain at your service, ready to answer your needs as they always have in the past, as well as being hereafter supported by a team whose reputation is long-established.

Please find herewith a copy of the press release that was transmitted during the transaction.

We hope to pursue our business relationship with your company and thank you for doing business with us.
